SENATE CONTINUES THE INVESTIGATING HABIT

PROBE OF SO CALLED POWER COMBINE FAILS

THEN SETS ABOUT TO INVESTIGATE LOBBY KILLING THE WALSH RESOLUTION

COAL FREIGHT RATES FIXED BY I. C. C. MAY BE INVESTIGATED

Washington, Feb. 17.—(UP)—The senate independent group, defeated in efforts to obtain a senatorial investigation of the so-called power combine, has held a conference to draw a resolution for an investigation of the lobby which it believes killed the Walsh resolution, the United Press learned today.

Sen. Walsh of Montana said the power lobby was the biggest he ever had seen in his years of experience in Washington.

Members of the group said today they expect a resolution for the investigation to be introduced next week. It would direct a special senate committee to ascertain the amount of money and influence used by Washington representatives of public utilities corporations to defeat the Walsh resolution.

The senate Wednesday night voted 46 to 31 to have the federal trade commission investigate public utilities instead of a senate committee as Walsh demanded. This course was approved by the public utilities representatives here.

The federal trade commission will proceed immediately to carry out all provisions of the amended Walsh resolution. It was announced following a meeting of the commission.

Washington, Feb. 17.—A resolution calling for investigation of coal freight rates fixed by the interstate commerce commission was introduced in the senate today by Sen. Sackett, republican, Kentucky.

Sackett's resolution calls particular attention to the commission's lake cargo freight rate decision as a subject for investigation and proposes that the inquiry be conducted by the senate interstate commerce committee.

A similar proposal by Sen. Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, introduced as an amendment to the Johnson resolution for investigation of conditions in the bituminous coal fields, was defeated yesterday.

'BLACK SHEEP' OF FAMILY CAN BLAME IMPROPER FOOD

Chicago, Feb. 17.—(UP)—The "black sheep" of many a family can blame his waywardness on eating the wrong sort of food during his childhood.

The family may be of excellent stock; the environment may have been of the best, and the child's training may have been along the most modern, scientific lines—but a lack of milk in the infantile diet may ruin his life.

Correcting the first signs of abnormality by building up health is one of the most important methods of developing character in the child, Dr. Florence Mateer, clinical psychologist of Columbus, O., told the midwest conference on character development here today.

"The physical condition of the child determine a great many of his feelings, and consequently guides much of his emotional life," Dr. Mateer said.

Lack of milk or other calcium substance, for example, affects body glands, she explained. Defective glands lead to successively fatigue, self-pity, depression, fear, waywardness and even suicide. The child also may suffer from body abnormalities such as he and his parents never knew existed until it was too late to correct them, she said.

This army and navy reception was the last state function of the winter and the first Mrs. Coolidge missed since she became "first lady." She was confined to her upper floor room with the last traces of a cold.

GOV. JACKSON ACQUITTED OF BRIBERY CHARGE

JUDGE McCABE UPHOLDS DEFENSE MOTION FOR DIRECTED ACQUITTAL VERDICT

STATE FAILING TO PROVE GOVERNOR ACTED TO CONCEAL ALLEGED CRIME

By WILLIAM E. HALLBERG (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 17.—(UP)—Governor Ed Jackson stood acquitted today of a charge of conspiring to bribe former Governor Warren T. McCray.

Judge Charles McCabe upheld yesterday a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal presented after the state had rested its case.

The motion was based on the defense's contention that the state had failed to prove Governor Jackson acted to conceal the alleged crime and therefore, under the statute of limitations, he was not guilty.

The statute of limitations, which the court ruled applied in Governor Jackson's trial, outlaws a crime more than two years old unless it is proved the defendant attempted concealment.

George Coffin, Indianapolis politician, and Robert I. Marsh, attorney, indicted with Jackson but granted separate trials, probably will be governed by the ruling. Prosecutor William H. Remy announced state counsel would decide within a day or two whether the indictments would be pressed.

Judge McCabe's opinion, which required 40 minutes to read, contained a denunciation of the Ku Klux Klan, alleged to have played a leading part in the political intrigue which resulted in Jackson's indictment. The judge said:

"I am fully aware of the slime and disgrace brought onto the state by that organization. I have talked of it this way since it first was organized and I still say it. There is nothing more revolting than this history of the state and it has resulted in the disgrace of the state of Indiana."

Conclusion of the trial on its seventh day was not unexpected. The defense previously had announced its intention of introducing the motion for a directed verdict of acquittal and Judge McCabe also had indicated he felt the state had not proved concealment.

During the trial five witnesses testified to direct knowledge that the bribe was offered. They were former Governor McCray; D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, now serving a life sentence for murder; William P. Evans, former prosecuting attorney and son-in-law of McCray; Fred Robinson, former state purchasing agent and James W. Noel, former personal attorney for McCray.

Peacock Inn, St. Paul Night Club, Ordered Padlocked Six Months, Federal Court Acts

The order is to keep the inn closed for six months.

It was sought by federal prohibition enforcement agents who claimed that "setups" were being served there to patrons who brought their own intoxicating liquors.

Meanwhile 12 abatement proceedings were started in federal court against that number of a total of 200 places in Minnesota that federal authorities are seeking to close. Seven of the places named today are in St. Paul, four in Minneapolis and one in South St. Paul.

RECOMMENDS ONE CENT TAX FOR ROAD BETTERMENT

C. M. BABCOCK ADDRESSES STATE ASSOCIATION OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

MOTOR REGISTRATION HAS INCREASED 96.4 PER CENT SINCE 1921

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 17.—(UP)—Recommendation of a one-cent gas tax for road improvements was made today by C. M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, speaking before the annual convention of the Minnesota State Association of County Commissioners, assembled here for a two-day session.

Motor registration has increased 96.4 per cent since 1921, according to Babcock's figures. In keeping with this pace, more work has been done on road improvement during the period of 1921-27 than during the past 15 years, he said.

A twenty million dollar bond issue for highway improvement would not build all the roads we need, but would go a long way toward the paving of those routes on which maintenance expense is greatest, according to Babcock.

The morning program opened with registration of members, followed by an address of welcome by George E. Leach, Minneapolis mayor. Other speakers on the morning program were C. H. Teideman, Red Wing, and W. L. Sullivan, Windom.

The jurors were locked up last night, after their fourth request for release had been refused by Judge Joe A. Davis.

The jury reported twice yesterday afternoon that it could not reach a verdict and asked to be discharged. Judge Davis refused each request.

THEORY OF POSSIBLE MURDER ADVANCED

POLICE INVESTIGATE DEATH OF THOMAS KETCHEL, AGE 74

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 17.—A theory of possible murder was advanced by police today in their investigation into the death of Thomas Ketchel, 74, father of the late Stanley Ketchel, former middleweight boxing champion.

The elder Ketchel was found dead in a barn on his farm near here yesterday. His throat had been slashed several times. Authorities based their theory of murder on the absence of any weapon which Ketchel might have used to commit suicide. The younger Ketchel was killed in 1911 in Missouri.

John Ketchel, another son of the aged man was held at police headquarters for questioning today.

John was taken into custody after his brother, Arthur, told police he found John's cap near the body of the father. It was found on the floor of the barn at the farm which Stanley bought for his mother with his prize ring earnings.

After examining the slashes in the aged man's throat, Coroner Leroy said he believed Ketchel had committed suicide. The belief was shared by the widow, who said her husband had been suffering from rheumatism for some time.

More than 600 pieces of skin already have been grafted on the boy's body and nearly 3,000 more were needed, physicians said.

Virtually all the skin below the waist was burned off the lad's body when his father accidentally threw burning oil over him.

The grafting operations may have to be continued for several weeks, Dr. S. V. Bedford, surgeon in charge declared.

Scores of Leslie's chums have called to see him. The boy manages to greet them with a smile despite his pain.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

WILL MEET SATURDAY AT THE WEST HOTEL IN MINNEAPOLIS

CALL WAS ISSUED BY THOMAS CASHMAN OF OWATONNA

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 17.—(UP)—The democratic state central committee will meet at 1 P. M. Saturday at the West Hotel, here. The call for the meeting was issued by Thomas Cashman, Owatonna, who was elected chairman of the committee last July after the death of C. A. Quist, Minneapolis.

It is expected that the meeting of the committee Saturday will not have a quorum, but that it will formally approve the action taken by the so-called "rump" committee meeting three weeks ago at Minneapolis. That meeting was called by Z. H. Austin, who claims that he is the chairman in spite of the action taken by the committee last summer.

At the other meeting of the committee, the time for the state convention was fixed for March 15 at the Minneapolis auditorium, for election of delegates to the democratic national convention in July at Houston, Texas.

Democratic leaders in St. Paul said today that they looked for harmony in relation to the coming state convention, and that Saturday's meeting also will fix the time and place for the various district conventions.

GREAT NORTHERN PAYROLL CUT IN SIX YEARS

St. Paul, Feb. 17.—(UP)—The Great Northern railroad's payroll has been reduced from $71,000,000 in 1920 to $47,500,000 in 1926, representing a cut in employees from 41,000 persons to 28,000, members of the Ambus club were told by George R. Martin, vice president of the road, and a speaker at the club luncheon here. Martin said that reduced payrolls are extended over a period of time and are not noticeable.

He explained that the proposed cut in payrolls through the contemplated merger of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads would be done in the same manner and that it would have no noticeable effect.

MANHUNT ON FOR TWO ESCAPED INDIANA CONVICTS

SOUGHT IN CONNECTION WITH MURDER OF TWO DEPUTY SHERIFFS

BODIES OF TWO OFFICERS FOUND YESTERDAY NEAR COVINGTON, INDIANA

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 17.—(UP)—A manhunt, rivaling the search for Marty Durkin, Chicago's notorious "sheik bandit," spread over the middlewest today for two escaped convicts sought in connection with the murders of two deputy sheriffs. The bodies of the officers, Wallace McClure and John P. Grove, were found yesterday near Covington, Ind. The bodies were covered with a laprobe which had been in the automobile Grove and McClure were using in transferring the two prisoners to the state penitentiary at Pendleton.

The officers left here Feb. 7 with their prisoners, Samuel Baxter and John Burns. The party failed to arrive at Pendleton. On the next day the prisoners were seen in Danville, Ill., and two days later the automobile, its windshield shattered by bullets, was found at Decatur, Ill.

Posses at one time numbering 1,000 men searched the region around Lafayette and Danville for several days after the four disappeared but found no trace of the deputies or prisoners.

The bodies were found by Charles Abdill, farmer, who was searching for a lost cow when he discovered the laprobe, partially concealed in a field.

Covington police were notified and the bodies removed for a coroner's examination.

Examination, Coroner Harry Stewart said, was difficult because of the decomposed condition of the bodies. Both men, he said, apparently had been killed by blows on the head. Stewart would not say whether there was evidence the men had been shot.

ATTEMPTED TO SAVE FATHER FROM DEATH IN THE FLAMES

Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 17.—(UP)—Leo Naber, 22, of Randolph, Neb., was in a Sioux City hospital today suffering from burns and unaware that his attempt to save his father from burning to death had been in vain.

His father, Herman Naber, died of burns received when a can of kerosene which he was using to start a fire, exploded. Attempting to beat out the flames enveloping his father, Leo was seriously burned. News of the death of the elder Naber will not be given to the son until he recovers.

READY AT LAST FOR IMPORTANT LEGISLATION

REPUBLICAN LEADERS HAVE FORMULATED PROGRAM FOR BOTH HOUSES

TO GUARANTEE ACTION UPON ALIEN PROPERTY SETTLEMENT, ETC.

By PAUL R. MALLON
Washington, Feb. 17.—Congress reached the halfway mark of its presidential year session today ready at last for action upon important legislation.

Republican leaders have formulated a program for both houses which, the United Press learns, will guarantee action upon pending legislative issues in the following order—alien property settlement, Muscle Shoals, farm relief, flood control and tax reduction.

The republican steering committee has decided upon this sequence and has the general approval of house leaders who have signified their intention to conform to it as far as possible.

Alien property and muscle Shoals will be cleared away quickly to get at the real business of the session under this arrangement. A final vote is expected in the senate this afternoon on the revised house bill for settlement of war claims between Germany and the United States. Muscle Shoals will come up Monday with Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, author of the government operation bill, predicting brief consideration and early passage.

The McNary farm price stabilization bill then will be taken up in the senate. Indications are that it will pass, despite President Coolidge's objection to the equalization fee provision. Final action will come probably in two weeks—about the time the commerce committee is ready to report out a flood control bill. The house is expected to get to work on the Reid compromise flood bill before that time.

By the time these things are out of the way, the March 15 income tax returns will have been made and the senate finance committee can determine whether the big tax reduction bill passed by the house should be considered in the senate.

MUSCLE SHOALS TO FOLLOW ALIEN PROPERTY

Washington, Feb. 17.—Formal announcement was made by the senate steering committee today that the Norris Muscle Shoals resolution would be brought up as soon as alien property is acted upon. The committee suggested action then upon two bills of lesser significance, the Tyson emergency army officers' retirement bill and the Norbeck migratory bird bill.

Chairman Sackett made no mention of farm relief measure because that bill was reported to the senate only yesterday, but republican leaders are agreed to permit the farm bloc to sandwich in the McNary bill before the Tyson measure.

POISON ALLEGEDLY PLACED IN WELL

Louisville, Ga., Feb. 17.—(UP)—Poison allegedly placed in a well here for spite has led to the death of Mrs. Thomas Kelly, illness of eight other members of her family, and the arrest of Mrs. Ida Williford and daughter, Mrs. Liza Ann Davis, charged with murder.

Authorities said that several weeks ago Kelly gave police information which led to the arrest of Mrs. Davis' husband on a charge of robbery.

Mrs. Williford and her daughter denied any connection with the poison planting.

Kelly and other members of his family were reported recovering from effects of the poison today. According to Sheriff D. C. Thomas, the poison was placed not only in the well but in a flour bin.

Washington, Feb. 17.—(UP)—The senate independent group, defeated in efforts to obtain a senatorial investigation of the so-called power combine, has held a conference to draw a resolution for an investigation of the lobby which it believes killed the Walsh resolution, the United Press learned today.

Sen. Walsh of Montana said the power lobby was the biggest he ever had seen in his years of experience in Washington.

The senate Wednesday night voted 46 to 31 to have the federal trade commission investigate public utilities instead of a senate committee as Walsh demanded. This course was approved by the public utilities representatives here.

The federal trade commission will proceed immediately to carry out all provisions of the amended Walsh resolution, it was announced following a meeting of the commission.

Washington, Feb. 17.—A resolution calling for investigation of coal freight rates fixed by the interstate commerce commission was introduced in the senate today by Sen. Siskett, republican, Kentucky.

Siskett's resolution calls particular attention to the commission's lake cargo freight rate decision as a subject for investigation and proposes that the inquiry be conducted by the senate interstate commerce committee.

A similar proposal by Sen. Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, introduced as an amendment to the Johnson resolution for investigation of conditions in the bituminous coal fields, was defeated yesterday.

GOV. JACKSON ACQUITTED OF BRIBERY CHARGE

JUDGE McCABE UPHOLDS DEFENSE MOTION FOR DIRECTED ACQUITTAL VERDICT

STATE FAILING TO PROVE GOVERNOR ACTED TO CONCEAL ALLEGED CRIME

By WILLIAM E. HALLBERG (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 17.—(UP)—Governor Ed Jackson stood acquitted today of a charge of conspiring to bribe former Governor Warren T. McCray.

Judge Charles McCabe upheld yesterday a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal presented after the state had rested its case.

The motion was based on the defense's contention that the state had failed to prove Governor Jackson acted to conceal the alleged crime and therefore, under the statute of limitations, he was not guilty.

The statute of limitations, which the court ruled applied in Governor Jackson's trial, outlaws a crime more than two years old unless it is proved the defendant attempted concealment.

George Coffin, Indianapolis politician, and Robert I. Marsh, attorney, indicted with Jackson but granted separate trials, probably will be governed by the ruling. Prosecutor William H. Remy announced state counsel would decide within a day or two whether the indictments would be pressed.

GREAT NORTHERN PAYROLL CUT IN SIX YEARS

St. Paul, Feb. 17.—(UP)—The Great Northern railroad's payroll has been reduced from $71,000,000 in 1920 to $47,500,000 in 1926, representing a cut in employees from 41,000 persons to 28,000, members of the Amalgamated club were told by George R. Martin, vice president of the road, and a speaker at the club luncheon here. Martin said that reduced payrolls are extended over a period of time and are not noticeable.

He explained that the proposed cut in payrolls through the contemplated merger of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads would be done in the same manner and that it would have no noticeable effect.

MANHUNT ON FOR TWO ESCAPED INDIANA CONVICTS

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 17.—(UP)—A manhunt, rivaling the search for Marty Durkin, Chicago's notorious "sheik bandit," spread over the middlewest today for two escaped convicts sought in connection with the murders of two deputy sheriffs.

The bodies of the officers, Wallace McClure and John P. Grove, were found yesterday near Covington, Ind. The bodies were covered with a laprobe which had been in the automobile Grove and McClure were using in transferring the two prisoners to the state penitentiary at Pendleton.

The officers left here Feb. 7 with their prisoners, Samuel Baxter and John Burns. The party failed to arrive at Pendleton. On the next day the prisoners were seen in Danville, Ill., and two days later the automobile, its windshield shattered by bullets, was found at Decatur, Ill.

Poses at one time numbering 1,000 men searched the region around Lafayette and Danville for several days after the four disappeared but found no trace of the deputies or prisoners.

The bodies were found by Charles Abdill, farmer, who was searching for a lost cow when he discovered the laprobe, partially concealed in a field.

Covington police were notified and the bodies removed for a coroner's examination.

Examination, Coroner Harry Stewart said, was difficult because of the decomposed condition of the bodies. Both men, he said, apparently had been killed by blows on the head. Stewart would not say whether there was evidence the men had been shot.

ATTEMPTED TO SAVE FATHER FROM DEATH IN THE FLAMES

Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 17.—(UP)—Leo Naber, 22, of Randolph, Neb., was in a Sioux City hospital today suffering from burns and unaware that his attempt to save his father from burning to death had been in vain.

His father, Herman Naber, died of burns received when a can of kerosene which he was using to start a fire, exploded. Attempting to beat out the flames enveloping his father, Leo was seriously burned. News of the death of the elder Naber will not be given to the son until he recovers.

READY AT LAST FOR IMPORTANT LEGISLATION

REPUBLICAN LEADERS HAVE FORMULATED PROGRAM FOR BOTH HOUSES

TO GUARANTEE ACTION UPON ALIEN PROPERTY SETTLEMENT, ETC.

By PAUL R. MALLON

Washington, Feb. 17.—Congress reached the halfway mark of its presidential year session today ready at last for action upon important legislation.

Republican leaders have formulated a program for both houses which, the United Press learns, will guarantee action upon pending legislative issues in the following order—alien property settlement, Muscle Shoals, farm relief, flood control and tax reduction.

The republican steering committee has decided upon this sequence and has the general approval of house leaders who have signified their intention to conform to it as far as possible.

Alien property and muscle Shoals will be cleared away quickly to get at the real business of the session under this arrangement. A final vote is expected in the senate this afternoon on the revised house bill for settlement of war claims between Germany and the United States. Muscle Shoals will come up Monday with Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, author of the government operation bill, predicting brief consideration and early passage.

The McNary farm price stabilization bill then will be taken up in the senate. Indications are that it will pass, despite President Coolidge's objection to the equalization fee provision. Final action will come probably in two weeks—about the time the commerce committee is ready to report out a flood control bill. The house is expected to get to work on the Reid compromise flood bill before that time.

By the time these things are out of the way, the March 15 income tax returns will have been made and the senate finance committee can determine whether the big tax reduction bill passed by the house should be considered in the senate.

MUSCLE SHOALS TO FOLLOW ALIEN PROPERTY

Washington, Feb. 17.—Formal announcement was made by the senate steering committee today that the Norris Muscle Shoals resolution would be brought up as soon as alien property is acted upon. The committee suggested action then upon two bills of lesser significance, the Tyson emergency army officers' retirement bill and the Norbeck migratory bird bill.

Chairman Siskett made no mention of farm relief measure because that bill was reported to the senate only yesterday, but republican leaders are agreed to permit the farm bloc to sandwich in the McNary bill before the Tyson measure.

POISON ALLEGEDLY PLACED IN WELL

Louisville, Ga., Feb. 17.—(UP)—Poison allegedly placed in a well here for spite has led to the death of Mrs. Thomas Kelly, illness of eight other members of her family, and the arrest of Mrs. Ida Williford and daughter, Mrs. Liza Ann Davis, charged with murder.

Authorities said that several weeks ago Kelly gave police information which led to the arrest of Mrs. Davis' husband on a charge of robbery.

Mrs. Williford and her daughter denied any connection with the poison planting.

Kelly and other members of his family were reported recovering from effects of the poison today. According to Sheriff D. C. Thomas, the poison was placed not only in the well but in a flour bin.

"Beau Sabreur" Pleases Even Hard to Suit Fans

One reason for the widespread success of the motion picture "Beau Sabreur" is the fact that while melodramatic heart-stirring moments are replete throughout the production, the comedy touch has not been forgotten.

From the very start of this Paramount adaptation of Percival C. Wren's thrilling story of the Sahara and the Foreign Legion, the lighter vein is apparent. The comedy has been placed in capable hands.

"Beau Sabreur," a sequel to the famed "Beau Geste," is being shown at the Lyceum theatre last time tonight.

Look first for a clean page with a delicate yet firm touch in the writing—a respect for the appearance of the very letter. Then see about the tall letters rising toward the line above. The loop on the small f below the line will be longer and larger than the upper half of the letter.

T bars that slant upward of even pressure bespeak reverence on the part of the writer. Letters that are not squeezed, as f loops and small o's, etc., show a great appreciation of life. Then the little Greek e is an additional key, as this shows a mind that is thankful for the knowing how and is always looking for the best way to live.

"IS THE SLACKER VOTE A MENACE?"

In the Manufacturer and Industrial News Bureau of recent date, William Bennett Munro, Ph. D., Professor of History and Government, Harvard University, and Member of the Executive Council, California Institute of Technology, discusses the question, "Is the Slacker Vote a Menace?"

Munro summarizes it this way: "People do not become good citizens by going to the polls. They go to the polls because they are good citizens. They stay away because they have no interest, or too little interest, in the issues or the candidates."

The professor states that the statistics of non-voting in the United States are giving a lot of worry to some of our militant uplift organizations. They point out that there are close to fifty million eligible voters in the country as a whole. But out of this total nearly a third neglect to get themselves registered, and of those who do register a great many persistently stay away from the polls.

The proportion of stay-at-homes is often thirty to forty per cent, even in lively campaigns; and when there are no important contests on the ballot it sometimes runs to fifty per cent or more. Taking the average for all our elections, national, state and local, it can fairly be said, therefore, that what we really have in this country is not government by a majority of the people, but government by less than half of those who are presumed to take a share in it.

Nor does the situation seem to be growing better. The proportion of the polled vote to the total vote is, on the whole, smaller than it was twenty-five years ago. Electoral apathy is growing, not decreasing. And this in spite of the nation-wide efforts that are being made by organizations of all sorts to increase the attendance at the polls. Large amounts of effort and money are being expended in bawling at the voters whenever any sort of an election is approaching—bombarding them with appeals to vote whether they are interested or not, whether they know anything about the candidates or not; in other words, to vote for the sake of voting.

In a certain western city, at a recent election, the Chamber of Commerce hired a staff of clerks for the day and had them call up every name in the telephone book with the injunction: "Go to the polls and do your duty. Don't be a civic slacker." The cost of doing this was considerable; it demoralized the whole telephone service during the day and the results were negligible so far as increasing the size of the total vote was concerned.

Not long ago, one of the candidates for the governorship in a middle western state bellowed at his people from the stump: "I want your votes, but if you can't vote for me, vote for my opponent! Don't stay at home. Come out and vote for somebody." Of course, he didn't mean what he said. It was political humbug of the first order. No candidate ever honestly desires a bumper vote in the interest of his opponent. It is contrary to human nature. The whole thing shows how enslaved we have become to imposter phrases about bad citizenship, and everyone's "sacred duty" to vote. There is nothing in our constitution, laws, nor civic morality which makes it the duty of any man to vote unless he feels that he can thereby contribute to the greater effectiveness of popular government. To vote unintelligently is a greater disservice to the commonwealth than not to vote at all.

People do not become good citizens by going to the polls. They go to the polls because they are good citizens. They stay away because they have no interest, or too little interest, in the issues or the candidates. In such cases is there anything to be gained by having them certify their lack of knowledge or interest at the ballot box? It is hard to see what real service can ever be rendered to the cause of enlightened government by the mere expedient of herding to the polls, by some sort of militant propaganda, a large number of uninterested, uninformed, reluctant people who go because they are shamed into it. We ought to concentrate our energies upon the task of getting the people interested, informed, and aroused between elections. We should try to increase, not simply the total number of voters, but the number of intelligent voters who will go to the polls of their own accord and who will know what they want when they get there. We need more widespread and better sustained campaigns of civic education the year 'round, and less of this ballyhoo at the moron vote on the eve of an election day.

There is a common impression that chronic non-voters are to be found chiefly in the ranks of well-to-do, educated people who ought to know better. Everywhere you hear it said that the crowded proletarian precincts always poll the highest percentage of votes in proportion to their population and that the fine residential wards make the poorest showing. It has become one of the formulas of practical politics, so often repeated that most people believe it to be true. But it has never been proved. On the contrary, every careful study that has ever been made of this matter indicates that the best showing at the polls is regularly made by the best neighborhoods. These studies, so far as they go, seem to afford a fair basis for the generalization that the percentage of non-voters is smaller, year in and year out, among public officials and employees, professional men, teachers, business executives, persons engaged in banking, insurance and real estate, merchants, and men engaged in the skilled mechanical occupations. It is highest among laborers, unskilled mechanics, clerical employees, people engaged in domestic and personal service; and lowest of all among persons of "no occupation." It is highest among heads of families who have lived for more than two years in the community and who own their own homes.

Contrary to the popular impression, moreover, these investigations show that the percentage of non-voters among college graduates is only about half that found among persons who have had merely an elementary school education. It is true, of course, that studies in this matter have thus far covered only a few individual communities; but there is no reason to believe that a nation-wide survey, conducted on the same lines, would give any different result.

The organizations which are spending so much effort and money in "get out the vote" campaigns, and in promoting a movement for compulsory voting would do well, therefore, to ask themselves the question whether this propaganda is likely to contribute anything, in the long run, to a more enlightened expression of the public will. By all the statistical indications it will not. They are applying the stimuli at the wrong spot.

What we most need is to make registration easier, the ballot simpler, elections less frequent, the issues clearer; and, above all, to organize our campaigns of civic education so that they will be more comprehensive, more persistent, and more effective in reaching those sections of the potential electorate which now contribute

most heavily to the percentage of stay-at-homes. Until we do this there is not much that we stand to gain by merely using the methods of the circus Barker.

AGAIN we say, sand your walk or use ashes to reduce the deadly slippery peril. More people than ever before in the history of Brainerd have sustained broken arms, legs, collar bones and other injuries by falling on icy walks.

"We will stop at the Crystal Palace and enjoy a cup of tea before transacting our business. It is one of the more respectable haunts along the Cocktail Route and—I think you will find it more interesting than the Poodle Dog." He smiled directly at her.

Dolores turned crimson in confusion. "I have read about all of them," she lied uneasily, "but do not really know about any of the town cafes—your forget that I said I have never been to San Francisco." She spoke haughtily.

"My mistake," apologized Buckwell and began talking of other things. He wisely felt it would not be well to antagonize her so early in the game. "Perhaps I will have to be careful," he thought. "She is crafty for one so young."

When they entered the tea room Dolores was reminded of story book descriptions of an Oriental Palace. The mammoth crystal chandeliers, from which it probably derived its name, sparkled with lights even in the day time. The rotunda was a spacious circular hall way reached from a wide heavily carpeted stairs. The curving walls of the unusual room were hung with lustrous draperies that concealed a maze of doors leading into public and private rooms of various descriptions.

This was all Dolores saw until half way up the stairs, then a gallery of nude pictures met her gaze. They were hung on a level with the eyes between the draped doorways. "Oh!" she gasped in startled mortification and stood still. It was a shock to know that such pictures existed. She wanted to run down the stairs and back to the peaceful dignity of the ranch. But as she turned her eyes met the suave, leering countenance of the Captain of waiters.

"Right this way, Miss," he said and pushed past her the way toward a curtained recess.

"Buckwell!" and other afternoon frequenter of the place were coming up the stairs. The rotunda was gay with strollers and Dolores decided that she had better close her eyes to the paintings and go on. She proceeded up the stairs but could not ignore them. A life sized portrait of a nude woman hung in its full frame beside the door they were to enter. Uncomfortable beyond description Dolores bowed her head as Buckwell smilingly ushered her into the handsomely appointed private room. She drew a sigh of relief—there were no objectionable pictures. It resembled an attractive apartment. There was a small dining table, chairs, a buffet, couch and fireplace in which glowed a well packed bed of coals.

Still uneasy Dolores walked to the fireplace while Buckwell gave the orders to the waiter in an undertone. She started nervously as she heard the door click. The waiter had departed and Buckwell was coming toward her.

"Would you like to remove your wrap?" he inquired solicitously. "The room is warm," and without waiting for her consent, he lifted the shawl from her shoulders.

Dolores thought he was a little clumsy, but that was not the reason

Buckwell furnished. He found the fragrance of her sweet presence intoxicating and had no desire to hurry.

"Sit here," he invited, indicating the couch before the fire. "A pillow at your back, perhaps? And another for your feet?" He worked busily making her comfortable.

She drew back uneasily as his hand lightly grasped her ankles to slide an enormous velvet pillow beneath her feet. She could not have been more startled if a snake had run across her slippers. She was impatient with herself for being so on edge.

"What will you tea be served soon?" she asked, eager to get away from the place.

"The waiter has gone for it now," he replied, lighting a long cigar with utter unconcern. He failed to add that it would not be served for an hour. Looking at Dolores long and appraisingly he sat down on the couch and continued, "You know the Vasquez lands are worth a fortune—but the Vasquez has another treasure that is priceless."

Dolores did not understand his significant scrutiny.

"Really?" she leaned forward interestingly. "What is it?"

"Can't you guess?" and he reached for her hand.

Dolores shrank back. Her brusque, startled eyes searched his face in amazement.

"I want to go home!" Trembling with nervousness Dolores tried to rise, but the pillow was in the way and before she could gain her feet Buckwell pulled her back to the couch.

"Don't worry," he remarked suavely, smiling at her obvious uneasiness. "I am going to save your property—but you must remain and help. And though it will cost me much—I know I shall some time be amply repaid." The nearness of her childish presence, sweet and startled, made Buckwell cast discretion to the winds. "You are going to be the one to repay me and I will take the first payment now!"

Dolores' fingers pressed against her mouth but too late to restrain a frightened scream that ended in a stifled sob.

Dark eyes narrowing in anticipation Buckwell knelt on the couch and drew Dolores toward him. Alarmed into action by his obvious attitude of possession she managed to get to her feet, but, bewildered and terrified, collided with the table in an effort to reach the door. Buckwell was at her side in a moment and both arms were about her body in eager desire.

Her struggles were futile. She felt suffocated and ill at this first contact with burning passion. The palms of both hands covered her face and tears fell from between her fingers.

His ardor flamed by her desire nearness Buckwell buried his face in the warm soft curve of her neck and literally became intoxicated by its sweetness. His eager lips and long moustache brushed Dolores' tender skin. It was all so hideous she could not believe she was alive. Her struggles were just as futile as if she were trying to escape a monster in a nightmare.

Buckwell finally succeeded in pulling her hands from her face and was bending over her desirable lips when the door unceremoniously burst open. He whirled quickly to curse the waiter for an untimely entrance.

Terry stood in the open doorway. He was breathless from hurry and his eyes flashed angrily at the scene before him.

"What the devil brings you here?" stormed Buckwell releasing Dolores from unsatisfied arms.

She staggered and clutched at the table for support. Then dreading to meet anyone's eyes buried her face in her hands.

Buckwell shot his stiff arms into place, quickly straightened his large tie and gave the ends of his waxed moustache an upward twist. "You can be very busy with other people's business, can't you?" he threw at Terry sneeringly.

"You low down cur!" Terry slammed the door behind him and crossed menacingly to the table. Something familiar in the voice made Dolores turn. "Oh, Terry!" she cried, thankfully.

"So, you had him follow us, eh?" observed Buckwell. "I might have known you weren't as innocent as you pretended." His lips curled contemptuously at Dolores—the same lips that a moment before had been so eager to kiss her.

"That's a lie!" dared Terry bitterly. "I called at the Vasquez home to apologize for something that happened last night. When the servant said she was here with you I knew something was wrong and took the same short cut back to follow you. It is a good thing I did."

Terry approached Buckwell with clenched fists. "You damned skunk!" and with his opened hand he Buckwell a resounding slap on the cheek.

Surprised at the attack Buckwell drew back and a volley of vile curses poured from his lips.

"IS THE SLACKER VOTE A MENACE?"

IN the Manufacturer and Industrial News Bureau of recent date, William Bennett Munro, Ph. D., Professor of History and Government, Harvard University, and Member of the Executive Council, California Institute of Technology, discusses the question, "Is the Slacker Vote a Menace?"

Munro summarizes it this way: "People do not become good citizens by going to the polls. They go to the polls because they are good citizens. They stay away because they have no interest, or too little interest, in the issues or the candidates."

The professor states that the statistics of non-voting in the United States are giving a lot of worry to some of our militant uplift organizations. They point out that there are close to fifty million eligible voters in the country as a whole. But out of this total nearly a third neglect to get themselves registered, and of those who do register a great many persistently stay away from the polls.

The proportion of stay-at-homes is often thirty to forty per cent, even in lively campaigns; and when there are no important contests on the ballot it sometimes runs to fifty per cent or more. Taking the average for all our elections, national, state and local, it can fairly be said, therefore, that what we really have in this country is not government by a majority of the people, but government by less than half of those who are presumed to take a share in it.

Nor does the situation seem to be growing better. The proportion of the polled vote to the total vote is, on the whole, smaller than it was twenty-five years ago. Electoral apathy is growing, not decreasing. And this in spite of the nation-wide efforts that are being made by organizations of all sorts to increase the attendance at the polls. Large amounts of effort and money are being expended in bawling at the voters whenever any sort of an election is approaching—bombarding them with appeals to vote whether they are interested or not, whether they know anything about the candidates or not; in other words, to vote for the sake of voting.

In a certain western city, at a recent election, the Chamber of Commerce hired a staff of clerks for the day and had them call up every name in the telephone book with the injunction: "Go to the polls and do your duty. Don't be a civic slacker." The cost of doing this was considerable; it demoralized the whole telephone service during the day and the results were negligible so far as increasing the size of the total vote was concerned.

Not long ago, one of the candidates for the governorship in a middle western state bellowed at his people from the stump: "I want your votes, but if you can't vote for me, vote for my opponent! Don't stay at home. Come out and vote for somebody." Of course, he didn't mean what he said. It was political humbug of the first order. No candidate ever honestly desires a bumper vote in the interest of his opponent. It is contrary to human nature. The whole thing shows how enslaved we have become to imposter phrases about bad citizenship, and everyone's "sacred duty" to vote. There is nothing in our constitution, laws, nor civic morality which makes it the duty of any man to vote unless he feels that he can thereby contribute to the greater effectiveness of popular government. To vote unintelligently is a greater disservice to the commonwealth than not to vote at all.

People do not become good citizens by going to the polls. They go to the polls because they are good citizens. They stay away because they have no interest, or too little interest, in the issues or the candidates. In such cases is there anything to be gained by having them certify their lack of knowledge or interest at the ballot box? It is hard to see what real service can ever be rendered to the cause of enlightened government by the mere expedient of herding to the polls, by some sort of militant propaganda, a large number of uninterested, uninformed, reluctant people who go because they are shamed into it. We ought to concentrate our energies upon the task of getting the people interested, informed, and aroused between elections. We should try to increase, not simply the total number of voters, but the number of intelligent voters who will go to the polls of their own accord and who will know what they want when they get there. We need more widespread and better sustained campaigns of civic education the year 'round, and less of this ballyhoo at the moron vote on the eve of an election day.

There is a common impression that chronic non-voters are to be found chiefly in the ranks of well-to-do, educated people who ought to know better. Everywhere you hear it said that the crowded proletarian precincts always poll the highest percentage of votes in proportion to their population and that the fine residential wards make the poorest showing. It has become one of the formulas of practical politics, so often repeated that most people believe it to be true. But it has never been proved. On the contrary, every careful study that has ever been made of this matter indicates that the best showing at the polls is regularly made by the best neighborhoods. These studies, so far as they go, seem to afford a fair basis for the generalization that the percentage of non-voters is smaller, year in and year out, among public officials and employees, professional men, teachers, business executives, persons engaged in banking, insurance and real estate, merchants, and men engaged in the skilled mechanical occupations. It is highest among laborers, unskilled mechanics, clerical employees, people engaged in domestic and personal service; and lowest of all among persons of "no occupation." It is highest among heads of families who have lived for more than two years in the community and who own their own homes.

Contrary to the popular impression, moreover, these investigations show that the percentage of non-voters among college graduates is only about half that found among persons who have had merely an elementary school education. It is true, of course, that studies in this matter have thus far covered only a few individual communities; but there is no reason to believe that a nation-wide survey, conducted on the same lines, would give any different result.

The organizations which are spending so much effort and money in "get out the vote" campaigns, and in promoting a movement for compulsory voting would do well, therefore, to ask themselves the question whether this propaganda is likely to contribute anything, in the long run, to a more enlightened expression of the public will. By all the statistical indications it will not. They are applying the stimuli at the wrong spot.

What we most need is to make registration easier, the ballot simpler, elections less frequent, the issues clearer; and, above all, to organize our campaigns of civic education so that they will be more comprehensive, more persistent, and more effective in reaching those sections of the potential electorate which now contribute

most heavily to the percentage of stay-at-homes. Until we do this there is not much that we stand to gain by merely using the methods of the circus barker.

AGAIN we say, sand your walk or use ashes to reduce the deadly slippery peril. More people than ever before in the history of Brainerd have sustained broken arms, legs, collar bones and other injuries by falling on icy walks.

SYNOPSIS

The ranch of Don Aguirre Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores is coveted by Buckwell, San Francisco boss. His lawyer, Brandon, can't make Vasquez sell. Brandon's nephew, Terry, loves Dolores. Buckwell plans to void Vasquez land grant. Terry warns Vasquez and offers aid. Vasquez spurs him and says that Dolores must marry a young Spaniard. Heart-broken, Terry tries to forget her by wild night along Barbary Coast. Dolores seeks Terry's aid in saving ranch, but returns home disillusioned by finding him a drunken party. Buckwell witnesses her visit and, intrigued, goes to Vasquez ranch. Under guise of aiding, he turns Dolores to San Francisco.

LEGION GAINS LEAD IN CENTRAL MINNESOTA CAGE LEAGUE

FIVE MAN SCORING POWER VANQUISHES COLD SPRINGS FIVE

LAST QUARTER RALLY BY THE BRAINERD TEAM BRINGS 33-29 VICTORY

MANAGER PETERSON IN FILL IN POSITION TAKES HIGH SCORING HONORS

The Brainerd American Legion team annexed first place in the Central Minnesota Basketball League on Wednesday evening by defeating the Cold Springs five by the count of 33 to 29.

After a poor start Brainerd came back in the third quarter to take a lead of ten points. Cold Springs' sudden burst of speed in the second quarter had resulted in a score of 16 to 12 at the close of the half. Gassar and Bell were keeping Cold Springs in the lead while Marshall kept Brainerd in the running with four field goals with Peterson and Whitlock scoring one each.

The start of the third quarter saw the Legion team working in short, snappy passes. Seven field goals were sunk in rapid succession while the Brainerd guards were holding Cold Springs in check. The locals played a stalling game in the fourth quarter. After the Cold Springs five had added 13 points, Brainerd broke loose for seven points to clinch the game.

Scoring honors were divided between Marshall, Peterson and Whitlock, Marshall scoring five field goals and Peterson six.

Bell and Stein scored five and four field goals respectively to hold up the Cold Springs five.

The locals were minus four players. Manager Peterson was forced to fill in Fitzharris' position, the latter having an injured thumb.

FINISH ONE, TWO IN RACES

HELD TODAY

JOHN HEATON, 3, MINUTES, 1.8 SECONDS, JENNISTON HEATON, 3, MINUTES, 1.8 SECONDS

THIRD PLACE TO ENGLISHMAN AND FOURTH PLACE TO ITALIAN

John Heaton, British, finished first for a time of 3 minutes 1.8 seconds. Jenniston Heaton, United States, had a time of 3 minutes 2.8 seconds, and Lord Northesk of England had 3 minutes 5.1 seconds.

Fourth place in the skeleton race went to the Englishman, A. J. Heaton, an Italian, finished fifth with 3 minutes 8.8 seconds. Untermyer, Austria, was sixth with 3 minutes 13.5 seconds.

There were ten contestants. The French skater, Dornmeil, overshot the corner bank of the course but was uninjured.

Placed in the skeleton race and awarded on the basis of aggregate times for three rounds. The final of the two-day tournament started today and in one bracket Canada defeated Sweden 11-0.

The ice was in perfect condition. The United States team left for Montreal yesterday afternoon waiting for a report on the cancellation of the proposed award of the 10,000-metre race to Irving Jaffee.

A majority of the Scandinavian delegation also left yesterday, after according to Jaffee a tremendous ovation.

Gustavus T. Kirby, of the American Olympic committee, told newspapermen before he left that Jaffee was confident the United States delegation as the winner.

The unsatisfactory handling of the games became evident yesterday when the United States delegation to the International Ski Congress, raised a laugh in replying to an invitation of Anders Hansen, St. Paul, for the Swedish team to the United States for the next congress.

"We may come," the said, "but before deciding we must send scouts to investigate the Americans' capacity to organize sports contests. I am not satisfied with the way we have been handled at St. Moritz."

John Heaton's time for his three trips down the dangerous run showed an average speed of 41 miles an hour. He was a favorite, on past performances in practice runs, and most experts had picked him to win. Heaton named his sled "Hell."

Switzerland beat Great Britain, 4-0, in the final round of ice hockey. By that time the sun was shining brilliantly, and the ice was slow.

Americans did not fare well in the 18 kilometer ski race today. The event was won by Frodo Braaten of Norway, whose winning time was one hour 37 minutes and two seconds.

Rolf Monsen, U. S. A., gave up during the race, while Anders Haugen and Charles Proctor, the other American starters, came in among the stragglers.

Hegge, Norway, was second, followed by Norway, third, and Finland, fourth. Vintatengen, Norway, fifth, and Haakonson, Norway, sixth, and a number of others.

WANT SOME OF LINDBERGH MEDALS FOR DISPLAY HERE

Little Falls, Minn., Feb. 17.—(UP)—Civic organizations co-operating with the American Legion will send a delegation of men to St. Louis to obtain permission from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to move a portion of his medals and trophies to his old home here.

The home where Lindbergh lived as a youth has been vacant for more than a year. It is located a few miles from here.

Minnesota congressmen are pushing a movement at Washington to furnish a Lindbergh medal, the sale of which would furnish money for properly equipping and caring for the home. In a bill introduced by Congressman O. J. Kvale late Thursday it was proposed that the supervision of the site be left to the American Legion.

Shortly after Lindbergh returned to America following his epoch flight to Paris from New York, he indicated to a delegation of Little Falls newcomers that he would donate the home to the use of the Richard Howard Ferrel post of the Legion, reserving but a few rooms for the use of himself and his mother during part of the summer season.

ALLEGED FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE IS SLAIN IN FIGHT

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 17.—(UP)—An alleged Lyndon, Kans., fugitive from justice was slain in a gun-battle with detectives here last night in which a St. Louis detective, two women and a second alleged fugitive were wounded.

The dead man told detectives before the shooting occurred that he was James Ryan of St. Louis, but police authorities said they had evidence indicating he was Clarence Supplee of Lyndon, wanted in Lyndon for holding up a city marshal there a week ago.

Detective Ralph Johnson was wounded in the gun battle, as were Miss Lovie Jett, 20, and Mrs. Bessie Moses, and Frank Supplee, alleged brother of the slain man. The two women were wounded in attempting to escape during the shooting.

One Americanism is to assume the man is guilty because he hired such a good lawyer.—San Francisco Chronicle.

ANOTHER UNSOLICITED TRIBUTE FOR ALL-BRAN

Good news for sufferers from constipation

Mrs. Kiell sat down and wrote us a letter when she had proved ALL-BRAN a safe "sure-cure" for constipation. Read her voluntary tribute:

April 4, 1927
"I have been using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN for quite some time and I want to tell you how much I appreciate it. I have found it a sure-cure for constipation, and know it is a remarkable regulator for the stomach. After using it, my family and I certainly will not be without it. I have even gone so far as to send some of it to my mother in Poland, Europe."

Gratefully yours,
Mrs. Anna Kiell,
77 Wolcott Terrace, Newark, N. J.

Perhaps you know what a terrible affliction constipation is. Blighting wherever it thrives. Ruining health. Marring beauty. Causing headaches, back pains, foul breath, loss of sleep—indeed, leading to more than forty serious diseases.

But did you know it can be easily relieved by a pleasant cereal food? Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring relief. Eat two table-spoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Serve with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use in cooking. At grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

LIONS WORK ON PLANS FOR LOCAL AIR PORT

Make it One of Major Activities in Busy Public Welfare Program This Year

LOOK OVER SITES

Suggestion Outlined to Look Into Feasibility of Using Golf Course

Lions club members as they plan for the greatest year of activity in the history of their club are prepared to back unanimously any feasible proposition that will result in the establishment of an airplane landing field in or near Brainerd.

Investigation of suitable grounds for a landing field that will incur little expense and still meet the requirements has been placed in the hands of the Civic and Welfare committee, of which City Attorney D. H. Fullerton is chairman.

The committee has already considered several locations but has as yet been unsuccessful in finding a location that will prove adequate.

The suggestion was made that it might prove practical to use one of the fairways of the Brainerd Country club without impairing usage of the grounds in any way. This suggestion is being seriously considered by the committee although as yet plans have not been submitted to Brainerd Country club directors. The committee will consider the proposition in a serious light and if the Country club course proves to be favorable without becoming a handicap the matter will be submitted to the Country club board.

The Lions club in taking the initiative in this project has started a worthwhile venture which will undoubtedly prove beneficial to the city in a few years to come as aviation becomes more popular in mail transportation. Should the movement on foot at the present time to establish an airmail route from Chicago to Winnipeg carry, Brainerd would be given a splendid opportunity in bidding for a stopping place.

The Lions club a few months ago went on record to do everything possible to secure a landing field for Brainerd. The matter was referred to the Civic and Welfare committee to make a survey of the possibilities and report to the club. Plans and literature were secured from the Lions International office and a survey taken of the possible locations in and near Brainerd with the thought of acquiring lands for that purpose.

"This seemed like an impractical solution at this time for the reason that the original cost of the land plus the cost of necessary construction work and maintenance including taxes would be too great," said Mr. Fullerton, chairman of the committee. "The committee then decided that the only solution would be one where the properties could be used for other purposes and not entail any great cost in either acquiring or maintaining."

"Not wishing to present any impractical plan to the Brainerd Country club it was decided to refer the plans we have secured from the Lions International to someone qualified to determine whether the landing field could be added to the golf course without impairing in any way the use of the course. At the present time the plans have been so submitted and the report will later be made with recommendations so that the club can then decide whether the matter could properly be taken up with the Brainerd Country club."

"The Lions club desires to use great care so that nothing will be presented to the Country club that would detract from their properties but would only be presented in the event that it was decided an improvement to their properties and a thing of value to the community."

MILD WEATHER HAS

ADVERSE EFFECT

Mild weather, with light rains and snow, has had an adverse effect on many of the roads in the southern half of the state, according to the weekly condition report issued by the State Highway department today. Many of the routes were soft and slushy during the first part of the week and when frozen are rough and slippery.

Roads in the northern half of the state in many cases are slippery but otherwise generally good.

Motorists are urged to use great caution in driving in all parts of the state. It is well, says the bulletin, to allow some extra time in planning trips, and to avoid high speed.

$100 RAISED PAST YEAR

Gave From Treasury for Flood Relief, Red Cross, Etc.

The Willing Oak Leaves met in regular session at the home of Mrs. Martin Sorenson and at the same time enjoyed a Valentine party staged for the sole benefit of the club members.

The room was beautifully decorated with streamers and hearts of all sizes and colors. Even the lunch served took on a Valentine note as among the dainties served were homemade candies and cookies decorated with candy hearts.

Mrs. Geo. McKay and Mrs. Henry Congdon deserve a lot of credit for the success of the party as they served on the refreshment and decorating committee, which was planned as a surprise for the rest of the club.

This club is composed of progressive farm women who realize the benefits of community organization. It was organized two years ago by County Agent E. G. Roth for project work under the direction of the Extension Division of the University of Minnesota. They successfully completed project I and II in sewing and are now anxiously awaiting the millinery project to be offered soon.

Each project consists of four lessons, one for each month. This means the members are not supplied with work from the university except for the four spring or summer months, unless they request special correspondence courses. At the present time the club is taking a correspondence course in "Child Care and Training." Some of the members are working for a certificate while others are interested in it for better citizenship which will naturally result from better knowledge of our growing generation.

The club remains organized throughout the year for community betterment. The annual treasurer's report revealed that during 1927 about $100 had been earned by the members through various sources. About $75 have been donated towards worthwhile causes such as: flood relief, Red Cross, fire fund, Christmas tree and candy for 100 children, three complete Christmas baskets, 10 Christmas boxes, flowers, two quilts, two night dresses, and numerous other things that make for community betterment.

At the last meeting the club decided to hold a spring frock sale on March 17. Many beautiful house frocks and aprons of all sizes will be displayed as the members are all expert seamstresses after the training they've had. Refreshments will

Why They Chose Two Paths

By AD. SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

MARIE ASHTON, carrying two suitcases, walked up the lane to the farmhouse of the Potters knowing she would be a welcome guest. To this retreat she had gone before—when the city had tired her. Marie was prepared to stay a month, if need be, long enough to make up her mind. She sighed with relief when she saw the comfortable farmhouse and shouted her joy when motherly Mrs. Potter opened the door and rushed to meet her. Now she would be alone, alone to walk and think.

"And when I can make up my mind for sure," she said, "I will return, return to marry Norman, or tell him I cannot."

At the dinner table that evening the girl saw her dreams end for here was another summer boarder, a tall man who looked at her respectfully and contributed nothing to the conversation.

"Anyhow," thought Marie, "I can hike, can keep away from him. I will pretend I do not know he is here."

The next morning the girl took some pains to escape, making sure no one saw her as she left the home. She walked through the forest and to the lake. At noon she returned to the house for lunch and was surprised to find the other boarder had not arrived.

"His name is Armstrong—Calvin Armstrong," Mrs. Potter volunteered, "and he is the quietest boarder I ever had. No, he is never here for lunch. Takes a sandwich or two and goes into the woods and hills and doesn't return until dinner. I'm kinda thinking he likes to be alone, though maybe, now you're here."

"It will make no difference," Marie interrupted. She would see to it that this man understood there were others who loved solitude.

That evening, after dinner, the family moved to the porch. Potter and Armstrong lighted pipes and all watched the sun falling behind the mountains. Though he said nothing the girl resented the presence of the stranger as an intrusion. One by one the family went in until at last the two were left.

"Since we have come to the same place," she said at last, "it is inevitable that we must become acquainted." She waited a moment but there was no reply.

"I am here because I wish to be alone, here to escape from every one but myself. You will pardon me if I am not well, sociable."

"Gladly," said the man. "And I will say that if you had not made a speech like that, or at least made your position plain, I would have moved on. I am here for the same reason. We may ignore each other without compunction." And he turned his back and had no further word. Marie was the first to give up the contest. When she went inside Armstrong held the porch alone.

The forest, the lake, and the Potters worked the magic with the girl's problem. She knew now she was sure of herself and her emotions and yet she lingered on, loath to leave the beauties of the place.

"Miss Ashton is leaving day after tomorrow," Mrs. Potter announced at dinner, "so I propose we all have a picnic by the lake tomorrow, her last day."

Marie shot a quick glance at Armstrong and there was a moment of silence, for it was evident the situation was understood. If he would but look at her, Marie thought, she would signal encouragement.

"That is too bad," he remarked quietly, "but I am leaving in the morning. Find I must go to town."

While plans went ahead for the picnic Marie found herself entering into them half-heartedly. In the morning she was up early, walked slowly along the trail to the road. After a while she heard him whistling as he came and stood behind a tree that, on his approach, she might emerge and be surprised to see him.

"I thought I would say good-by," she said, betraying as she had not meant to, the fact she had laid in wait for him. "You know you do not really have to go to town, that you are doing it to avoid the picnic. If it is for anything I have said I wish you would come."

"That is kind of you," said the man, "but from the first, from the instant and then because of your warning, I have avoided you. I will continue to do so, unless—"

"Unless?"

"Well, unless you will consider me a suitor." He spoke rapidly, giving her no opportunity for reply and taking no notice of her startled expression. "When I saw you I knew that acquaintance would mean love, that you were the girl I have been waiting for. I also knew you didn't like me and so I don't wish the acquaintance. It is self-protection." He smiled, lifted his hat as if what he said would mean a parting and started on.

"But," said the bewildered and yet determined Marie, "a girl could not accept a proposal without knowing the man better, and you wouldn't expect me to—"

He faced her quickly, puzzled and hopeful.

"But a girl could say, 'come to the picnic,' and she could promise to be pleasant, and, and—"

Together they walked back to the house.

BURY LUNCH FOR PREHISTORIC DOG

Indians' Custom Revealed in Finding of Bones.

Washington.—Discovery of two deer bones painted red is a bit of evidence that Indians who lived in America 2,500 years ago placed food in the graves of pet dogs so that they would have bones for their journey in the next world. The deer bones were found beside the skeletons of a prehistoric dogs by Dr. F. H. H. Roberts, Jr., of the bureau of American ethnology, who has just returned from an archeological expedition to Chaco canyon, N. M.

The dogs appear to have been buried with ceremony by the Indians, said Doctor Roberts in discussing his expedition. Whether the dry bones were painted red to fool the dog spirits into thinking there was good meat on the bones can only be conjectured.

The dogs belonged to Indians of the last days of the basketmaker civilization that flourished in the Southwest many centuries before the Pueblos, he said. Very ancient tribes are known as the basketmakers because they wove all their vessels and containers. In the course of centuries pottery-making was learned.

Definite evidence of the Indians who lived at the time when the change from baskets to pottery was made was discovered by Doctor Roberts. Fifteen skeletons were found in two layers of earth. The burials in the lower level had no baskets or containers for food, such as have been found in similar burials. The baskets here had evidently fallen apart and disintegrated from exposure before time covered them with earth. But in the layer of earth above them were bodies accompanied by crude clay jars and bowls.

These skeletons of the transition period are of great interest to ethnologists who are studying the types of Indians who inhabited America in the days before the time of Christ.

Complete pieces of four bowls which could be patched together, even after so many centuries, were found by Doctor Roberts, as well as quantities of fragments of the rough, coarse clay containers made by the first artisans of the region who tried the potter's trade.

High Shoes for London Girls Are Coming Back

London.—High shoes reaching half way up the calf and reminiscent of styles ten years ago will be in vogue this year with English girls, judging from the exhibitions at the shoe and leather fair which was held here.

The models shown were plain in style and had none of the swashbuckling flare of the Russian boots. It is predicted that black and brown shades will be worn by the business girls, while the ultra-fashionable women will prefer scarlet boots and three-inch heels or opalescent kid boots radiating with every color of the rainbow.

It was evident at the exhibit that lizard skin will continue to be a popular trimming for shoes this winter.

Storm Center Shoves Barometer Far Down

Port Townsend, Wash.—The birthplace of storms south of the Aleutian islands is hard on barometers, reports Capt. X. Kawashima of the Yokohama Maru on arrival here. While passing through the storm nursery he noted the lowest barometric reading ever observed on the Pacific, the indicator showing 28.37.

The vessel experienced no rough weather, but the Japanese navigator believes he just missed a typhoon or monsoon. Most of the severe storms that sweep the Mississippi valley originate in the Aleutian area, where varied currents of ocean water influence the atmospheric conditions.

Clever Chinese

New York.—Clever, these Chinese! A detective arrested a dozen when he found them in a room with money on the table. One explained to the judge in excellent English that they were taking up a collection to buy a book on cross-word puzzles. They were freed.

Deer's Appetites Ruin Golf Course Greens

Girard, Calif.—The Girard golf club is probably the only golf club in the world that finds itself up against a necessity of hiring a caretaker to shoot wild animals off the greens.

The links border on several dark canyons that run back into the Santa Monica mountains, where bands of wild deer browse. Nobody has shot at these deer in so long that they are more or less tame. At night when the golf players go home to explain to their wives that they have been in their offices all day the deer come out of the canyons, nibble the rich grass and eat up everything else green that is in sight.

Recent fires in Topanga canyon have destroyed the wild herbage. As a result most of the deer are now "boarding" on the golf club greens. Officers of the club say a man or boy with a lantern will be hired to keep the deer off the run after nightfall.
